

It's Mardi Gras season in Mobile! The usual 4th MOJO Monday Jazz Jambalaya this year falls right in the middle of mirth and madness. What's a jazz fan to do? When MOJO began in 2001, we promoted "outings", the precursor to Jazz Jambalayas. We'd meet at local restaurants and watering holes featuring live jazz to show our support for the business and the bands.

On Sunday, February 12th, from 12-2pm, join us for the first MOJO SUNDAY jazz BRUNCH OUTING of 2017 at Corpus Christi Parish Community Center, 6300 McKenna Drive, Mobile, AL, for a Jazz Brunch. Jimmy Roebuck, Robert Normand, Josh Tiftord and Larry Carter will provide the music while you enjoy an elegantly catered brunch. Cost at the door is $10.25 for adults; $4.25 for children under 10. Cash preferred. Reservations not necessary.

Bring your family and friends! Food and music are FABULOUS!

2017 ACTION PLAN FOR JAZZ FANS

1. Come to as many MOJO Jazz Jambalayas as you can. Bring friends, food, door prizes.
2. Make newcomers feel welcome. How many members do you know by name?

3. Volunteer at MOJO JJs, Gulf Coast Ethnic & Heritage Jazz Festival and other jazzy community activities.
4. Develop a MOJO JJ program. Mentors available for first timers.
5. Help spread the word about MOJO. Pick up or download fliers to share with friends. Ask for permission to post at places where you shop.
6. Help identify grant and funding resources for MOJO special projects and events. Ask your company/organization to underwrite or contribute to this local nonprofit. Lots of perks!

7. MOJO partners, A & M Peanuts, Mobile Symphony and Cammie's Old Dutch Ice Cream Shop welcome your patronage. Say "thanks for supporting us."

Two drummers were standing outside a music store looking in the window. One says to the other, "Don't tell anybody, but I've always wanted to play the accordion."

Pointing to an ad in with window, his buddy says, "Look there's a sale on this month. Why don't you go in and buy one?"

"You know what people think about drummers", says the first. "I'm just too ashamed to go in and ask."

The second drummer thinks for a minute and says, "I've got an idea! You can go disguised as a businessman. That way no one will know you're a drummer."

The next day, the drummer walked into the music store, dressed in a suit, and pretending to be discussing a deal on his cell phone. When he ended his "phantom" call, a sales rep walked up to him and asked, "Can I help you, sir?"

Drummer: "Yes, I would like to buy an accordion."

Rep: "Certainly sir. Which one would you like?"

Drummer: "That one over there. The one against the wall."

Rep: "You, sir, are obviously a drummer."

Drummer (shocked): "How could you tell?"

Rep: "Because you're pointing to the radiator!"
