- Q. What is your idea of perfect happiness?
A. Doing those things you love without any expectation of recognition or reward.
- Q. What is your greatest fear?
A. Fortunately, I haven't had to think about this question.
- Q. Which living person do you most admire?

A. Any person that will casually mention a Jazz or Big Band artist's name that they are aware of.

- Q. What is your greatest extravagance?
A. Extravagance is a word that doesn't apply to me.
- Q. What is your current state of mind?
A. So far, so good.
- Q. On what occasion do you lie?
A. I never LIE...just RECLINE every once in a while.
- Q. What do you most dislike about your appearance?
A. Ask the female sitting at table #6 and the male at table #11.
- Q. Which living person do you most despise?
A. I have ignored that person my whole life.
- Q. What or who is the greatest love of your life?
A. Loving the same music that I loved when I bought the Metronome All Star Magazine in 1952 for $2. Barely had enough for what I was supposed to buy. My mom still smiled at me.
- Q. When and where were you happiest?
A. My happiness never diminishes no matter where I am or whom I'm with.
- Q. Which talent would you most like to have?
A. Give an interesting interview.
- Q. What do you consider your greatest achievement?
A. Never having said "I'm not going to do this anymore."

A young child returned from his first music lesson on the tuba. "How did it go?" asked his father. "Great," said the child. "I learned how to play a 'C'."

The next week the child took another lesson and his father asked about the lesson. Terrific," said the child. "I learned how to play a 'G'."

The following week the child didn't come home. The father was frantic with worry when the child didn't come home until 2am. "Where in the hell have you been?" screamed the father.

Pulling bills from his pocket to show to his father, "Out gigging," answered the son.
